From Saturday April 4, to Tuesday April 7, 1747.

Conſtantinople, February 21.

ON the 14th Inſtant, his Excellency John Porter, Eſq; his Britannick Majeſty's Ambaſſador to the Porte, had his Audience of the Vizir, by whom he was receiv'd with the greateſt Marks of Diſtinction; and honour'd with the Sable Furr at parting. In Conſequence of the Concluſion of the Perſian Peace, the reſpective Ambaſſadors are to be exchanged the 10th of March on the Frontiers, and in two Months after the Perſian Ambaſſador is expected here. The Cham of Tartary, who arrived here ſome Time ago, to make a Viſit to the Grand Senior, is returned loaded with Preſents. The Aga of the Janiſaries has been removed, and made Paſha of Heydin, in Aſia.

From on board the Ruſſell in Vado Bay, March 13, O. S.

ADmiral Medley, with the Squadron under his Command, came into this Bay upon the 10th Inſtant: As ſoon as they came to an Anchor, Information was brought to him, that ſome of the Enemies Tranſports of Troops had been diſcovered upon this Coaſt; thereupon the Admiral immediately weighed Anchor, and proceeded to Sea the ſame Night. The next Morning he was off Genoa, where meeting with Intelligence from the Cruizers, that thoſe Embarkations were diſperſed, and that ſome had fallen into our Hands, and others returned to the Weſtward, not being accompanied with any Naval Force, he again came to an Anchor here Yeſterday. According to the Advices received this Day, his Majeſty's Ships have taken nine Veſſels with Troops of the Embarkation which departed from Toulon for the Relief of Genoa, five of which, with his Majeſty's Ship the Revenge, are now arrived here; the Captain thereof reports, that the Antelope had taken three Tranſports, the Leopard three, and himſelf two, on the 8th and 9th Inſtant: That the Priſoners ſay, the Tranſports being upwards of Forty, ſail'd from Toulon the $\frac{6}{17}$ Inſtant, having only a Xebeque and a Frigate to eſcort them: That, on the 7th Inſtant the Wind blowing hard Eaſterly, when they were about the Diſtance of Cape dell Mell, they were ſeparated. Upon the 10th Inſtant his Majeſty's Ship the Feverſham took one of the ſaid Tranſports to the Eaſtward of Genoa, and that Ship, with the Seaford and Loweſtoff, chaſed five others into Porto Fin and Porto Eſpecia, as the Phœnix did the French Frigate into Genoa; the Weather prevented the Ships which were appointed to intercept this Embarkation from keeping their Stations, and thereby hinder'd their taking a greater Number: The exact Account of the Numbers of Soldiers taken is not yet known, but they are all French Troops, and it is imagined will exceed 900 Men, excluſive of the Seamen belonging to the Veſſels. We hear that ſix Sail of the ſaid Tranſports have taken Shelter at Monaco, ſome at Antibes, and probably others may have reached Corſica, but the greateſt Care will be taken to prevent their getting to Genoa, or any Part of the State of the Republick. By Advice from Capt. Weller, of his Majeſty's Ship Roebuck, and Commander of the Veſſels employed at the Iſlands of St. Marguerite and St. Honore on the Coaſt of Provence, on or about the 18th of laſt Month at Night, the Commanding Officer of his Majeſty's Ships on that Station, obſerving ſome ſmall Veſſels upon the Plage of Cannes, ſent a Barcolongo, commanded by Capt. Veale, and two Feluccas, to attempt to deſtroy them, in which they ſucceeded ſo well, that notwithſtanding the Enemy brought down a great Body of Troops to the Sea Side to oppoſe our Deſign, and after a warm Fire on each Side, our Veſſels brought off ſix of their ſmall Craft, and damaged ſome others, without any Loſs on our Side; the French, as was ſaid, had one Captain and ſome Soldiers killed.

Upon the 22d of February, Captain Weller obſerving that the Enemy had again collected about five or ſix Settees, and a Number of ſmall Veſſels upon the Plage of Cannes, which appeared to be intended to land Troops upon the Iſland of St. Marguerite, in order to make an Attempt upon the Caſtle, to forward the Succeſs of which, beſides the Battery of nine or ten Pieces of Cannon erected againſt it on the oppoſite Shore, there was alſo a Bomb Battery of four Mortars, he judged proper to attempt to deſtroy the ſaid Embarkation, and accordingly proceeded with his Majeſty's Ship the Roebuck, the Barcolongo and two Feluccas, but on his approaching the Shore, the Enemy turned their Cannon to play upon them, which galled our Veſſels greatly; thereupon he brought up againſt the ſaid Batteries of the Enemy, and attacked them with great Vigour, and after a long Oppoſition he ſilenc'd them, and obliged the Enemy to retire. The Barcolongo having before this received conſiderable Damage in her Hull, was obliged to bear away, being in Danger of ſinking, which was no ſmall Diſadvantage to the Undertaking, as being a ſmall Veſſel, which could conveniently get near the Shore, and do Execution upon the Plage of Cannes; however Captain Weller brought up as cloſe as poſſible, and cannonaded them till Night came on, and then returned to anchor in his Station off the Iſlands. He apprehends that ſeveral of thoſe Embarkations were demoliſh'd, but but the particular Loſs of the Enemy we do not yet know, tho' it is conjectur'd their Loſs of Men may be very conſiderable, it having been obſerved from our Ships, that the Officers had the greateſt Difficulty to keep their Men in the Batteries to ſtand ſo warm a Fire as was made upon them, from the Roebuck in particular, during this Action. On our Side, the Barcolongo had ſix Men wounded, and the Veſſel was much ſhatter'd. The Roebuck received about 30 Shot in her Hull, and her Maſts and Rigging were much wounded. Six Men were killed on board of her, and fourteen wounded. Captain Townſhend, who commands his Majeſty's Ships employed on the Coaſt of Provence, is order'd to extend his Cruize to the ſaid Iſlands, and to give all the Aſſiſtance he can to the Governor of St. Marguerite. Count Schulembourg's Quarters are ſtill at Novi, and he is to be ſupplied with ſome Cannon and Mortars from hence.

Ruſſell, in Vado Bay, March 19. His Majeſty's Ship Leopard is this Day arrived here, and brought in about 250 French Soldiers of the Prizes that Ship had before taken, which with others before put on Shore, will make about 750 Soldiers and Officers. We have Advice, that the Duke Fireſhip had taken off the Iſlands of Hieres another Tranſport, having on board about 150 French Soldiers, and it is ſuppoſed that Prize is carried to Villa Franca, where we hear thoſe that could not reach this Place on Account of the bad Weather, are alſo arrived; but as we have no particular Account from the commanding Officers of thoſe Prizes, we cannot ſend an exact State of the Number of Officers and Soldiers we have taken in the ten Tranſports, which to this Day we have certain Advice have fallen into our Hands; but we are aſſured the whole Number is about 1100, among which, we do not hear of any Officer above the Rank of a Captain or Adjutant. The Priſoners are all ſent into Piedmont, where they are to remain as his Majeſty's Priſoners of War, till they are ordered to be otherwiſe diſpoſed of.

Hambourg, April 11. Captain Porter, in his Britannick Majeſty's Ship the Flamborough, is ſafely arrived in the River with Eleven Sail of Merchant Ships under his Convoy.

Hague, April 14, N. S. The Earl of Sandwich returned hither Yeſterday from Breda. We learn from Paris, that the Firſt Diviſion of French and Swiſs Guards marched the 6th, that the Second was to follow the 8th, and the Third, the 13th Inſtant. The Horſe Guards were not to be reviewed, but to ſet out the 15th. The Departure of the French King's Houſhold was put off to the 26th Inſtant. There are Advices that the Hector, a very rich French Indiaman, is arrived at Teneriff, in her Way to France. We do not learn that the French have yet begun to encamp in Flanders. M. de Lowendahl is going to Ghent, it is ſaid to review his Regiment. M. de Saxe is ſtill at Bruſſels.
